The Future of Southern Energy: Making Choices for your Community

Date:

Time:

Location:

When we think about energy, we often think about the negatives—high gas prices, environmental challenges and national security issues. However, many communities are seeing that there are ways to capitalize on economic opportunities related to energy.

Join other community residents in an open discussion on how to turn energy-related issues into a positive in your community. As a forum participant, you will be joining thousands of other Southerners, who are holding similar conversations across the region, to develop strategies for energy-related economic development, from bioenergy to sustainable design to green collar job development.

Your community's feedback will be used in presentations at Southern Growth's 2009 annual conference, and in developing Southern Growth's 2009 Report on the Future of the South, a high profile policy report that is shared with Southern Governors and regional leaders in business and education.

Southern Growth Policies Board is a regional public policy think tank representing 13 Southern states that develops and advances visionary economic development policies. For more information on Southern Growth Policies Board, visit www.southern.org.
